About Janson Wu, JD
Executive Director, GLAD (GLBTQ Legal Advocates and Defenders)

In his more than a dozen years at GLAD, Janson Wu has been involved in the breadth of GLAD's work, including the rights of LGBT elders, marriage and family law, employment benefits, and transgender rights. He now leads GLAD's coalition work to uphold Massachusetts' transgender nondiscrimination protections at the ballot. GLAD has been at the forefront of the movement to win the freedom to marry, arguing cases from the MA Supreme Court to the U.S. Supreme Court.

About Alex Coleman, PhD, JD

Dr. Coleman is a clinical psychologist, attorney, educator, parent, grandparent, musician, and Jew who has lived, worked, and advocated for more than 25 years as a transgender person. Dr. Coleman has been a lifelong activist individually and as a leader in national, state and local organizations pursuing equity, justice and full inclusion for the most marginalized people.

Trans Rights = Human Rights: What's at Stake in MA Ballot Question #3

Featured Speakers:

Janson Wu, JD

Alex Coleman, PhD, JD

and PJ Feynman of Congregation Beth El

On Election Day, November 6, 2018, Ballot Question #3 will ask Massachusetts voters whether to uphold a law that protects transgender people from discrimination in public spaces.

A "YES" vote keeps the current law in place.

In this interactive panel presentation, you will learn about the history of Question #3, its national significance, and what's at stake. We'll explore why we may feel uncomfortable about gender identity and expression, and how we can move toward greater understanding. We'll hear about how discrimination affects transgender individuals and their families, and learn why transgender rights are a Jewish issue.

This program is co-sponsored by Congregation Beth El and Keshet, and is supported by the Beth El Adult Education and Tikkun Olam Committees.

Free of charge. Donations appreciated.
